Project Progress Report

Objective:

Design an index page that asks the users to login in case of a returning user, or signup in case of new user.

What I did last week:

Conducted research into the growth and effectiveness of our website in the present and the future. Analyzed which technology to employ and which to avoid. As we move forward with our project, the web page we started creating for our website will undergo some changes because as we add features, they will each need a specific location on the page.

What I did this week:

I designed the index page of our project which asks the user to login in case of a returning user or to sign up in case of a new user. Attached is the screenshot of the index page.

The index page takes the login details and match those details in the database and on verification will let the user login and help him in moving further with generating the personalized report.

What next:

I am planning to create the signup page and then connect them to database and then also create a webpage that will list all the details about EV and non-EV vehicles where the user will be able to have a descent knowledge about EV and non-EV vehicles upon reading.
